for the estotion I had fall, in any reasonable way, I at length fall salesp, and the recking of my vessel, as the five before the wind, gave jost motion enough to my hammonic he intl me into a cound similar. In I framed all sight of Mary Sinclair. I dreamed of her, but it was in unpresent freemen. I awa her standing on the deak of the "Foam," and as I would advance to wards her the form of Wallew would interpose—I would fancy, at times, that my arms were around her, and her form was resting against my side, and her kead lay on my thoulder; and then by the strings mustations of dreame, it was most i, to. Waller, that was including her, and I was not in the last the side of the first side of the side of the first side of the morning found no wife, awake, reasoning myself out of my fancies. By moun I had eacugh to do. The occase was roused. A temporary out on the sa, and the Toam west before it. Foam went before it.

Night came durugloomliy. The very blankness of darkness was on the water as we flaw before like terible blant. I was on deak lashed to the wheel by which I steed, with a knife within reach ise ont the lashing if necessary.

We had but a rag of sail on her, and yet she
